THE COLLEGE BUILDINGS.

The New Structures at Richmond College Formally Opened.

The chapel of Richmond College was packed yesterday morning and again in the afternoon by friends of the institu ion, who desired to witness the forms opening of the two new buildings recent ly erected. The buildings are the Science Hall, which cost $25,000, and the Memoria Hall, or dormitory, which cost $30,000. Rev. Dr. W. E. Hatcher, president of the Board of Trustees, presided over the exercises. It was shortly after noon order, the "Doxology" being sung. PROFESSOR AMES. Professor Hunter, of the chair of Chem istry of the College introduced Professor Joseph S. Ames, of Johns Hopkins, who made the dedicatory address. As who made the dedicatory aggress. As the movement for the erection of Science Hall originated in a meeting ad-dressed by Professor Ames, Professor Hunter thought it was fitting that the address should be delivered by a represen-tative of the same institution.

when the first meeting was called to "The opening of the Science Hall," said or. Ames, "must mark an epoch in the history of the school." The part of science in liberal education was discussed a length, the speaker holding that it was an essential portion.

The object of education is not to fill man's mind with mere facts; to make it kind of warehouse of information. It object is to train the mind so that a ma-is better equipped for any career. The necessity is to train the mind and to train it right.

The sneaker's idea was that laboratory work should be designed to establish what is taught in text books. He doubted the advisability of experiments in school for the purpose of discovery.

Dr. Ames said no fair mind could witness the nhenomena of science without being convinced that it was directed by a will removed from our universe. Hence he thought science was a proper study to be included in the curriculum of all schools.

The speaker did not think the commer-dal benefit to be derived from education-specially in scientific study should be

DR: CURRY'S ADDRESS,
Hoo. J. L. M. Curry was presented by D.
Hatcher, who said he needed no introduce tion. Dr. Curry began by a reference to the statue. In the harbor of New Yok, the gateway of the new world, bearing the eloquent insertption "Liberty Enlightening the World."

"This is not, exclusively or mainly, civil liberty," he said, "The monarchies of the old world have demonstrated that art, culture, military nower, constitu-of the old world have demonstrated that art, culture, military power, consilionations, are impotent without the essential vitalizing principle of soul-freedom. Liberty of conscience deepens and makes secure civil liberty. The two are invenerably united. They are helpful auxiliaries creative and buttressing, and awaken in the masses enormous mental and moral force."

The United States is the best illustration of the practicalness and value of both civil and religious freedom. Absolute separation of church and state is America's contribution to the science of government. As yet we have, in our country, no commemorative monument of the try, no commemorative monument of the idea and the fact. Monuments there are in abundance to warriors and kings, but we need some to great thoughts, to seed-bearing truths. The final victor has not been won. Whenever an official religion exists, and tithes and taxes are collected for churches or clergy, or public revenues are appropriated for hospitals, asylums, reformatories, schools, under sectarian or church management and control there evil principle is to be found and there the battle is to be ceaselessly waged. the battle is to be ceaselessly waged.

REDEEM THE PLEDGE REDEEM THE PLETON

Twenty-five years ago in the memorial movement there was a distinct avowal of a purpose to identify Richmond College with the services and sacrifices of the men and women who labored wisely and suffered cruelly for the heritage we entire the ladar, we partially redeem by. Here, to-day, we partially redeem

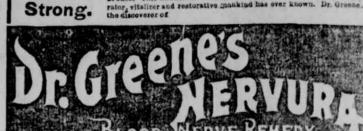

The speaker said there was singular appropriateness in connecting the idea of religious liberty with high and universal useful Thomas lectures, to the pecuniary advantages equal to an annual investment in the city of $1.00,000 to the literary culture and healthful influence produced upon the community, to the constant impulse to popular education and applied science, and to the prestige a city obtains from an institution of learning in its midst.
